MUSLIM QUARTER × CITY STREET LIFE

OLD STREETS, LIVING FLAMES

Step into the lanes of the Muslim Quarter and encounter the true flavor of Xi'an. This is not just a famous food street, but a living neighborhood shaped over centuries. Along the main arteries of Huimin Street and Beiyuan Gate, traditional eateries, local workshops, and daily life exist side by side. Aromas, voices, and passing footsteps together form the city's most authentic expression.

WALK THROUGH CHANG' AN,
UNDERSTAND THE CITY' S PULSE

This is not just a route for city-wall photo stops. It is a living line where history and daily life flow together. From the City Wall to Shuyuanmen, from Xiangzi Temple to Defu Lane, every step reveals how ancient Chang'an quietly evolved into today's Xi'an. Walking these streets is not about checking landmarks, but about understanding the city through its layers.

STONE AS SCRIPT
WORDS AS SOUL

There are no crowds here, only the deepest voices of Chinese civilization. Within the Forest of Stone Steles, thousands of inscriptions preserve the true lineage of Chinese writing and calligraphy, from clerical script to regular script, from imperial edicts to scholars' reflections. Each stone tablet is an original imprint of time, recording not only how characters were formed, but how a civilization chose to remember itself.

LIVE-ACTION SHOW

When the lights rise, Qin history takes the stage. War drums, iron armor, banners, and battle cries do not simply narrate the past, they place you inside it. This is not a retelling of history, but a theatrical awakening of an era, where stagecraft, lighting, and emotion work together to restore the spirit of a unified empire.

THE TERRACOTTA ARMY OF QIN SHI HUANG

A COLLECTION OF TERRACOTTA SCULPTURES

Although the Qin terracotta figures are nameless, but thousands of people face, they are the body of the world in order to protect thousands of miles of rivers and mountains. It is not nameless, once fresh clothes angry horse, but in the underground, through thousands of years of time, see all the prosperity down, still calm. The Terracotta Army is located in the Terracotta Army pit of Lintong District, Xi'an Province, Shaanxi Province. It is listed on the World Heritage List and is one of the world's top 10 ancient tombs. It is known as a "Eighth Wonder of the World" and a national key cultural relic protection unit.

HUASHAN MOUNTAIN

Huashan Mountain is not only a place of breathtaking scenery, but also a place of spiritual cleansing at every step of the climb. It stands tall, static guard there, just like the dream and enthusiasm of a teenager. This is Mount Hua, forever young and worth a lifetime of searching for. Xifeng District seemed out of reach as night fell. Here to embrace the sunset and greet the sunrise, is my lifelong dream. It is the spirit of Mount Hua to strive to be young again, even when you are no longer young
